The boy and girl of the Class of 1958, chosen by popular vote by the student body and faculty, are Barbara Binkele and James Winkler.

Class Prophecy

Dear John,

When I saw you last, you said that I should tell you all about my recent trip to the moon. Anyhow, I have gone now, and that is where I am writing this letter from. I sure wish you could have come along, but I realize that you are very busy on your project to irrigate the Pacific Ocean. How are the wife and kids? Mrs. Findlay, I remember, is the former Vada Knudson.

Now, about my trip. First, I bought my ticket for the moon at the Minooka Rocket Terminal. Selling the tickets was Barb Binkele, who I soon discovered is now Mrs. Bob Chernisky. Bob owns the world's largest junk yard and they are very rich and getting richer. Looking out the window, I could see the rocket that I would be traveling in, the Pluto. When I turned around, who should I see but our old pal, Art Hutchinson. Art, it seems, designed and built the Pluto. He seemed confident that it would work, but when I suggested that he come along, he turned pale and asked me if I was crazy. He screamed that he would never, under any circumstances, ride in one of his rockets. This attitude puzzled me for a while, but Art's wife Joanne (yes, Joanne Patten Hutchinson) said that so many of Art's rockets have blown up that he is a bit leery of going near them.

By this time, I had almost decided to cancel my trip, but something hit me on the head and knocked me out. When I awoke, I found myself strapped down inside the Pluto. All us passengers were very frightened, but the co-pilots came back and assured us that this was normal pre-flight procedure. They looked familiar and sure enough, it was Alden Erickson and Glenn Sing. When I asked if they recognized me, they did and we had a very pleasant conversation before it was time to blast off. Before they left, though, Alden handed me what he said was a super-cosmic-ray gun. Glenn said it was for shooting down satellites.

Soon after we blasted off, we started to pass by satellites. By leaning out the porthole, I found that I could pick them off with no trouble. Suddenly I saw a very big round satellite go by. From this I surmised that it was our old buddy, Bill Brewer, who was put in the first manned satellite. If you remember, Bill went up in his satellite shortly after his marriage to Lois Severson, and has since refused to come back down. Lois, you remember, liked to argue. Well, I just couldn't resist shooting at that satellite too, but I quit when he shot back at me.

Our journey was soon over as the moon came into view. Our landing was very rough, and I could see why. Alden and Glenn had landed our rocket on its side, which is decidedly not the way to land a rocket. We crawled out of the rocket and were greeted by a large, happy crowd, made up partly of moon natives, but mostly of immigrants from Earth. I went to the customs office and the first person I met was the examining physician. Though his hair was gray, I recognized Harold Saltzman. He was all business, and after looking at my tonsils said that I had athlete's foot. I didn't know how he could tell, since I had my tonsils out years ago. Oh yes, one of the officials there was Leona Pehlke.

I finally got through customs, and walked out into the street. The first thing I did was fall down an open manhole. On picking myself up, who should I see but Larry Todd. Larry is chief of the moon's sewer workers. After helping me out of the sewer, Larry invited me to dinner at his home that evening.

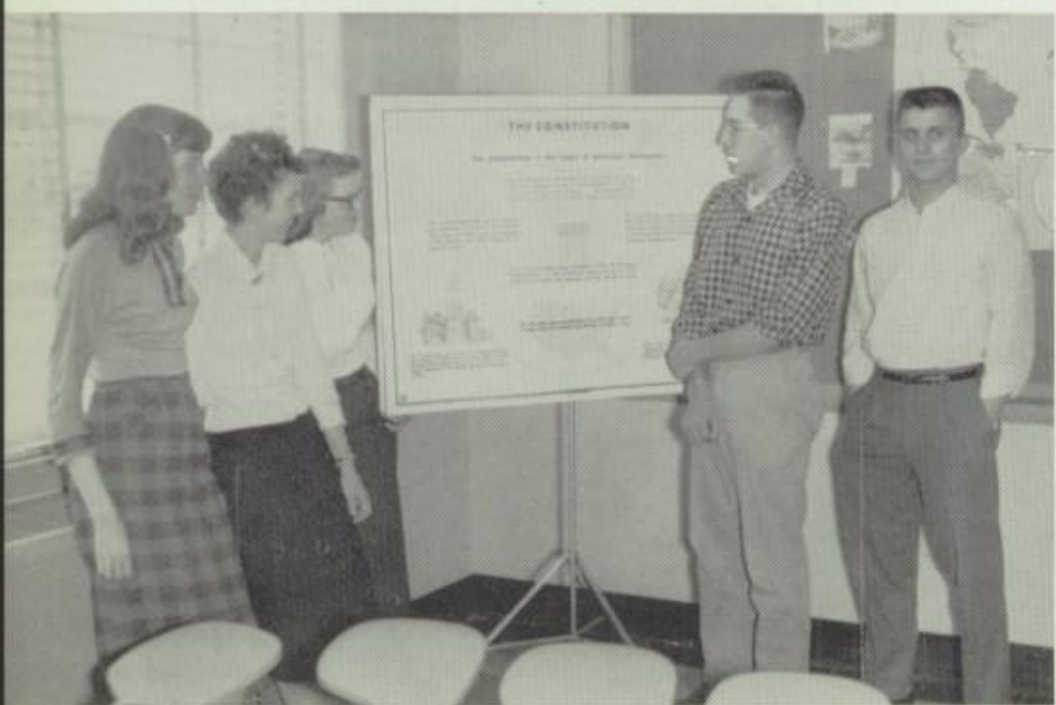

While walking down the street, I saw the moon-famous College of Crude Arts, dean of which is Milos Konjevich. I dropped in to see Milos and also met his wife, the former Bev Todd, who is now a psychiatrist.

That night, at the home of Larry and his wife, the former Retha Brown, I saw all the ex-Minooka Indians who now dwell on the moon. Glenn and Alden were there with their wives, whose names used to be Peggy McCoy and Pat Anderson. Dr. Harold Saltzman was present with his wife, the former Virginia Wallin. The president of the Earth-Watchers Society, Charlene Heap, was there too. Charlene was one of the earliest immigrants to the moon and she married one of the native moon-men. Step-ladder manufacturer Margaret Good came on her rocket-powered pogo stick.

In closing, I just want to say that I'm having a great time, and I wish you were here.

Yours truly,

JIM WINKLER

Senior History

Our class started its trip through high school with 34 members and we are ending this trip with only 22 members. We have been well represented in all activities through our four years, some of which were: basketball, baseball, track, cheerleading, band, chorus, Peace Pipe Chatter, M-DI-AN, F.H.A., F.F.A., and Student Council. This year our Student Council members were John Findlay and Lois Severson.

Our Senior year we have been busy preparing for the Christmas party, Sock Hop, scholarship tests, and history reports.

These past four years have been full of many different types of experiences which we feel have enriched our lives.

On the evening of May 10, 1958, the gymnasium of Minooka High School was transformed into a small Hawaiian island for the annual Junior-Senior Prom. The dancers stepped through the door of a house onto their "Isle of Dreams." Looking in the distance they could see palm trees at the water's edge. A bridge crossed a small stream that surrounded the members of the band. Highlights of the evening were a grand march and the coronation of a king and queen chosen by the junior class.

Junior History

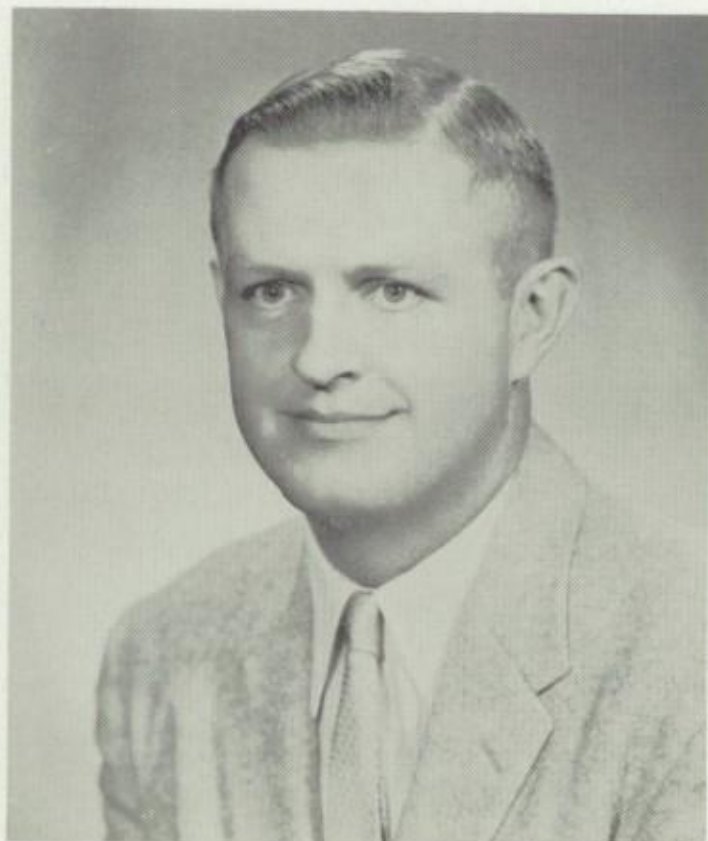

We Juniors have had a very exciting year. We have all been working hard to raise money to make our prom and banquet the best one yet. All of the Juniors pitched in to help make our sale of Christmas cards successful, as well as the "Junior Snak Shak," our concession stand at the basketball games.

The Junior class had representatives in many of the school activities such as basketball, cheerleading, band, and girls' chorus. We also had a high scholastic standing with nine students on the semester honor roll. Our representatives to the Student Council were Barbara Heap and Jim Herringer.

We have had a very successful year.

Sophomore History

The Class of '60, now in its sophomore year, was successful in the five main projects it started and completed. In November we had a luncheon at the church; that same night we had a successful skating party at Morris. We had a dance in December after one of the basketball games. The luncheon we sponsored in February and our skating party in March turned out very well.

Our student council members were Tonya Weers and Larry Peterson. We were well represented in all phases of sports, music, cheerleading, and other school organizations.

Freshman History

The Freshmen got acquainted very fast this year. We sponsored the Valentine Party this year. In February, our class put on a luncheon. Many members of our class participated in sports, music, and other extracurricular activities.

John Seehafer and Lynda Connor represented our class on Student Council. Twelve members of the Freshman class were on the honor roll. We are eagerly awaiting our Sophomore year.

Activities

Virginia Wallin, Business Manager; Charlene Heap, Editor; and Milos Konjevich, Assistant Editor.

M-DI-AN

The Class of 1942 was the first class to publish the M-DI-AN. This was their dedication: "This annual, the first attempt of the senior class to perpetuate the memory of school years in Minooka High, is dedicated to the patrons of Minooka Community High School District Number 111 and Minooka Consolidated School District Number 210, in token of appreciation for their promotion of the ideals of education."

The name M-DI-AN comes from the word Indian, our school symbol. The "M," for Minooka, was substituted for the first syllable in Indian to make the name M-DI-AN. Every year since 1942 the annual has been published under this name.

The M-DI-AN staff would like to thank the faculty and the student body for their co-operation in making this annual a success.

This year is the sixteenth anniversary of our school paper, the Peace Pipe Chatter. It is published once a month and is distributed to some of our alumni and boys in service who have subscribed to it, in addition to all the students. We also exchanged the Peace Pipe Chatter with other schools.

The Peace Pipe Chatter is published by the office practice class. Our paper usually has these points of interest: an editorial, news of each class and each activity, a calendar of coming events, record of perfect attendance and honor roll, and social school chatter.

The Peace Pipe Chatter staff hopes everyone has enjoyed reading the school paper as much as we have enjoyed publishing it.

Student Council

The Student Council of Minooka High School has eight members who represent the entire student body. The Student Council gives the students the opportunities to voice their desires and opinions through their representatives. It creates a closer relationship between the students and teachers and fosters a high form of school spirit. It is a real democracy on a small scale.

MEMORIAL TROPHIES

The rules, this year, have made basketball a battle of free throws. At no other time in the game's history has the free throw been the winning factor in so many contests.

Each year a trophy is awarded to the player on the varsity and junior varsity teams with the highest percentage of free throws made.

Steve Hauger won the Wayne Thompson Memorial Trophy with an 85 percent free throw average. This is the thirteenth year this trophy has been awarded. Congratulations for a fine free throw record, Steve.

The junior varsity's trophy recipient also displayed a fine record from the charity circle. The Robert Rushton Memorial Trophy was awarded to Lee Stalker for his free-throw percentage of 75.
